

BULLET--SPECIAL EDITION--BULLET

Despite postponement of Mrs. Nixon's trip scheduled for today to Kenmore and the Monroe Library, Kathy Thiel has announced that the march to picket Mrs. Nixon will take place as planned. Marchers should gather at 8 p.m. on ACL terrace. A new destination has been chosen and will be revealed to the marchers when they assemble.

The White House announced yesterday that Mrs. Nixon had decided to postpone because "she understands that demonstrations are imminent in the local community." She plans to visit at a later date.

William Kunstler will speak tonight at 8 p.m. in University Hall, Charlottesville. Jerry Rubin, Chicago 7 defendant, will be appearing with Kunstler. Arrangements for tickets can be made with Jane Touzalin in the BULLET Office.

Planning continued yesterday for the MWC to DC march scheduled for Friday and Saturday. Marchers will leave from Seacobeck Friday at 7:00 a.m. and walk up Route 1. A housewife in Alexandria active in the anti-war movement has offered her yard and house facilities for Friday night for the marchers. There will be a meeting at 9:30 am. today to determine the amount of support for the strike and for general information.

Arthur Waskow, resident fellow at the Institute of Policy Studies and author of The Limits for Defense and From Race Riots to Sit-Ins spoke yesterday on what citizens can do to end the war to a crowd of 400 in ACL Ballroom.

Waskow said "we are now at a crossroads in human history." He cited two circumstances which create moments of mass action and concern; the realization by people that their leaders are incompetent and the realization that they have the ability to effect change.

Waskow called the Vietnam War "a lightning flash that has woken up American society." He said that action taken by the American people does not have to become a blood bath, "if millions of us are together and clear about what we want."

"This is going to be a turning point for the future of the world," he continued. We must turn back from the road of self-destruction--now. There is only one way to get out of Southeast Asia and that is to get out."

Dr. Burton Cooper also spoke to the group gathered in ACL Ballroom yesterday afternoon to hear Waskow. Dr. Cooper said that a society based on the principles of love for fellow human beings was the best solution to the crises the world now faces. He said, "We had better start loving, or, to quote James Baldwin, there will be 'a fire next time.'" Cooper's speech was met with a standing ovation from the crowd.

Students held a memorial service in Ball Circle last evening for the four students killed by National Guardsmen at Kent State University (Ohio) on Monday. Dr. Cooper spoke and urged students to feel the impact of those deaths and continue to act according to their beliefs with renewed determination.

Benjamin Woodbridge, local delegate to the Virginia State Legislature, told a Free Lance-Star reporter yesterday that he feels that any faculty member who participated in a strike should be subject to dismissal from the College.

Jody Reed announced to the Senate last night that the administration has approved a plan to eliminate curfews for students next year. Details are not yet completed, but, according to Jody, the plan involves a system for signing out keys for students who plan to return to the residence halls after closing hours.
